Unlock your leadership potential with our comprehensive training course! Often, individuals with exceptional operational and technical skills are fast-tracked to managerial positions. However, the leap from a functional role to a leadership one is not always seamless.

This is because leadership is an art that needs to be learned and honed, contrary to the common misconception that it's an inherent trait or a by-product of functional competence.

So, what does it take to be a good leader, and how does it differ from being a manager?

A simple Google search on leadership reveals numerous myths, such as:

- Leaders are born, not made
- Only bosses can be effective leaders
- Leaders know everything
- All leaders are charismatic

On the contrary, we believe that effective leaders make better managers as they command greater respect and support from their teams. Hence, we urge all ambitious individuals to start their leadership journey today. Equip yourself with the necessary skills for future supervisory and managerial roles. Start learning and practising leadership skills now, and get ready to lead the way to success!

Our Leadership Development Programme (LDP) brings together 4 accredited programmes that will provide learners with the best opportunity to excel in leadership. These programmes can be completed throughout the year and do not have to be attended consecutively. For the most effective change to happen, we understand that changed behaviour takes time and is a process rather than a quick fix. By committing to a programme of learning, learners can build their skills one brick at a time, obtain regular feedback, and explore the challenges they may face as they develop.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Our LDP is intended for high-potential staff with managerial aspirations, as well as those who are already senior managers or executives, including heads of department, section heads or divisional heads with more than one team reporting to them. Delegates will gain critical skills and knowledge enabling them to influence others to accomplish objectives and to build goal-directed, motivated and successful teams.
