Turning tension into constructive conversations

US 114226 / NQF Level 5 / Non-Credit Bearing

"The quality of our lives depends not on whether or not we have conflicts, but on how we respond to them." – Thomas Crum

Conflict is inevitable, but how you handle it determines whether it strengthens relationships or creates division. Many people see conflict as something to avoid, or even suppress through rules, but when left unresolved, it simmers beneath the surface - disrupting collaboration, problem-solving and team co-ordination. Tension builds, misunderstandings deepen, and productivity suffers.

It is far more effective to address conflict with a commitment to resolution, transforming it into an opportunity to enhance relationships and align teams toward shared goals. This practical, skills-based course equips you to navigate conflict with confidence - both when you are directly involved and when supporting others. You will learn how to manage emotional responses, reframe perspectives, and apply proven resolution strategies to turn disagreements into constructive conversations that strengthen teamwork and drive better outcomes.
